POWERS GET WILSON REPLY IN ADRIATIC CONTROVERSY

President Insists No Favoritism Be Shown The Jugo-Slavs

TONE MODERATE

Declines Responsibility For Delay In Settling Of Question

(French Wireless Service)

Paris, March 7.—President Wilson's new note on the Adriatic question was received yesterday at the Quai d'Orsay. The French newspapers state that the document is moderate in tone.

The president expresses his appreciation of the cordial tone of the latest Allied notes but maintains his point of view and continues to formulate the same objections in the cases of both Fiume and Albania. The president, in short, still abides by the memorandum of December 9 last.

Referring particularly to Albania, President Wilson declares that the rights of the Albanian people must be protected and no favoritism shown to the Jugo-Slavs.

In conclusion, relying to the passage in Mr. Lloyd George's and M. Millerand's note pointing out the grave inconveniences of any further delay in the settlement of the question, the president denies that he has been the cause of the delay and declines all responsibility on this head.

NEUTRALS HASTEN FOR LEAGUE MEMBERSHIP

Paris, March 6.—Neutrals are hastening to join the League of Nations. A Geneva telegram announces that the Swiss States Council (first Chamber) has voted adhesion to the League; a similar resolution has been passed by the (2nd?) Chamber of the Dutch States General. A Christiania message reports that Norway's adhesion to the League was voted in the Storting after the rejection of a Socialist motion opposing joining the League.

London, March 1.—The Italian Premier, Signor Nitti, and Dr. Trumbitch, representing Italy and South Slavia, have been engrossed during the week-end in direct negotiations with a view to an amicable settlement of the Adriatic dispute. It is believed that a solution will soon be reached as President Wilson has announced his readiness to agree to their solution, provided that it is not made at the expense of the nationals of a third power.

French Nurse War Heroine

Mlle. Martha Gauthier.

Orphaned by the war and wearing all the decorations that her native country could bestow on her, Mlle. Martha Gauthier, a war nurse with both the French and American armies, arrived in New York recently. Mlle. Gauthier when she arrived was so ill that it was necessary to aid her down the gangplank. She was wounded three times and was taken prisoner by the Germans. She was placed in a prison camp in Alsace-Lorraine, where in an effort to save herself from an attack by a German officer she slashed both her wrists, which necessitated her removal from the camp to a hospital. From there she escaped by chloroforming 22 Germans as they lay in the hospital.

Honan Tuchun Victorious; Wu Kuang-hsin Is Ordered By Peking To Withdraw

Three Rival Factions Now In Political Field, League Of Eight Tuchuns, Marshal Tuan's Party And Those Who Are Neutral

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, March 8.—The politico-military situation in North China has become highly interesting. While the Cabinet crisis is still acute, Tuchun Chao Ti of Honan appears to have gained his point by the order to General Wu Kuang-hsin's troops to evacuate Honan. This does not necessarily mean their complete removal from Sinyangchow, which has been Wu Kuang-hsin's transportation center since his appointment as commander-in-chief on the Upper Yangtsze.

Chao Ti's success however means much more than the removal of Wu Kuang-hsin's fighting forces from Honan, for Chao Ti has promoted the so-called eight Tuchuns' League, consisting of Generals Chang Tso-lin, Sun Lieh-chen, Pao Kwei-ching, Tsao Kun, Li Shun, Cheng Kuang-yuan, Wang Chuan-yuan and Chao Ti.

It is only since the Anfu Clubs demand for the removal of Chao, and its recent opposition in the Cabinet to the Premier, that the powerful Inspector-generals Tsao Kun and Chang Tso-lin have shown support of the Premier.

This is considered the most important development since the election of President Hsu Shih-chang. The old Peiyang Party is now split in three, viz: (1) the Eight Tuchuns' League; (2) Marshal Tuan Chi-jui's party supported actively by Generals Chen Shu-fan, Hsu Shu-cheng and Wu Kuang-hsin and also nominally by the Premier Chin Yun-peng and (3) neutrals consisting of Generals Chang Kuang-chien, Yang Tsen-hsin, Lu Yung-hsiang, Li Hao-chi, and Yen Hsi-shan, while each party claims General Tien Chung-yu, whose policy appears to be opportunist like that of General Ni Shih-chung.

There is no doubt that the Eight Tuchuns' League is supporting Chin Yun-peng and it is believed that he will ultimately throw in his lot with them. The defection of Generals Chang Tso-lin and Tsao Kun from the Anfu Club clique has enormously strengthened the Premier's position but it is not improbable that Marshal Tuan Chi-jui may oppose any combination in which Chang Tso-lin takes part.

Meanwhile the Anfu Club members of the Cabinet are absenting themselves from the Cabinet meetings, and while the Premier's announcement that he intends to proceed with government affairs without them is considered important, it is fully realised that no financial, judicial or communication affairs can be carried out without the Ministers concerned.

The President is at present endeavoring to mediate. If he is unsuccessful a real crisis will be reached in the early future.

Two Planes Finish Bagdad Stretch Of Rome-Tokio Flight

(Reuter's Service)

Rome, March 2.—A telegram from Basra, dated February 26, states that the two S.V.A. (Savoia-Verduzzi - Ansaldo) aeroplanes, piloted by Lieuts. Ferrarin and Masiero, have successfully accomplished the Bagdad-Basra stage of the Rome to Tokio flight.

London, March 1.—Lieut. Matthews who left England in October in a Sopwith aeroplane to attempt a flight to Australia and subsequently crashed near Bundarabeas, has repaired his machine, the Air Minister announces, and left for Charbar on February 23.

Germans Renounce War Crime Charges Against Entente

(French Wireless Service)

Paris, March 7.—The German newspapers recently announced that in reply to the demand for the surrender of German war criminals, the Berlin government would present to the allies a list, enumerating the officers of the entente armies against whom counter-charges would be made for criminal acts against German subjects.

The Petit Parisien is informed that the German minister of foreign affairs, Herr Hermann Mueller, denied this report in the national assembly on Friday. He added that it was useless to provoke by such a challenge the powers of the Entente, "which," he declared, "are always ready to combine against Germany."

UNFAVORABLE SENATE VOTE ON TREATY IS FORECASTED

G. O. P. Reservation On Article Ten Attracts Democratic Support

Versailles Pact Regarded As Dead As Far As U.S. Is Concerned

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, March 2.—The Republican leaders have reaffirmed their decision not to accept any changes in the substance of their reservation to Article 10 of the Treaty of Versailles. Both sides agree that there are enough Democrats to defeat the ratification who are determined to oppose the Treaty unless Article 10 is modified.

There is every indication that the Treaty will become the issue in the presidential election campaign.

An early unfavorable vote on the ratification is forecasted.

London, March 1.—A telegram from Washington says that as far as the United States is concerned the Peace Treaty of Versailles is now regarded as practically dead. It is stated that if the Senate ratified the Treaty with the Lodge reservations President Wilson would finally kill the document by pigeon-holing it.

U.S. STEEL TRUST VICTOR IN SUIT TO BREAK IT UP

Supreme Court Dismisses The Government Action—Organisation To Remain Intact

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, March 1.—The Supreme Court has refused to dissolve the so-called Steel Trust and has dismissed the Government action against the Trust. The injunction was refused on the ground of restraint of trade and the Court also refused to make an order to break up the super-combination of the Steel Trust which is said to be the world's greatest industrial organisation, its assets exceeding $2,000,000,000. The Court ordered the dismissal of the Government's suit without prejudice and therefore the Government will be able to bring another action if the Trust resorts to illegal practices.

FRENCH RAIL MEN WILL ARBITRATE FUTURE DISPUTES

Government Will Recognise Union Rights And Apply Sliding Wage Scale

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, March 2.—The terms of the railway agreement include recognition of union rights and the general application of the principle of the sliding scale of wages. The railwaymen agree to accept arbitration with regard to matters still in dispute.

The agreement provides for the establishment on the lesser railways of commissions, composed of equal number of representatives of employers and employes, for the immediate mutual examination of the future conduct of the railways.

There will be no payment for days lost during the strike but the penalties for failure to resume work will be rescinded. The economic committee of the General Confederation of Labor will be consulted with regard to the working of the railways.

Paris, March 2.—After a debate on the railway strike the Chamber of Deputies today passed a vote of confidence in the Government by 503 votes to 75.

STRIKE LEADERS HELD

Paris, March 1.—Five leaders of the railwaymen's unions, named Sirolle, Leveque, Sigrand, Chaverot, and Bourdeaux have been arrested on a charge of interfering with the freedom of labor and incitement to insubordination.

It was estimated last night that there were 190,000 railwaymen on strike. It was however, pointed out that the railwaymen's federation's funds were far too low to support a protracted struggle, only enabling the payment of one franc strike pay a day.

Senator Knox Wants Congress To Decide On Foreign Loans

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, March 6.—Senator Knox has introduced a new resolution into the senate, designed to prevent the extension of credit, to foreign governments without congressional action. The resolution provides that the credit of the United States shall not be pledged until such action is confirmed by congress.

London, March 5.—The Chancellor of the Exchequer announces that the British and French Government have decided not to renew the loan issued in the United States in 1915 on their joint and several security, and that they are taking the necessary steps to provide for its repayment.

U. S. CONSUL BACK OF IT

Civil Government In Fukien Powerless And People At Mercy Of Military

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, March 5.—The Peking Government has proved that its writ runs in some parts of Fukien. The International Anti-Opium Association, Peking, has just learned that in response to the vigorous efforts of Mr. G. C. Hanson, American Consul at Foochow, a powerful protest was addressed by the Central Government to the Foochow authorities against their enforcement of opium cultivation upon the people. A deputy was sent to Yungtai. He summarily dismissed all the officials and abrogated the opium and other taxes which had been illegally levied. Naturally, the district is rejoicing, and is grateful to the Consul for his firm action.

Peking, March 5.—Distressing conditions prevail in Fukien, where civil government is practically at an end, and the unfortunate people are at the mercy of the rapacious soldiers. Interesting information has reached the International Anti-Opium Association from Yungtai to the following effect:

"Not only is the army forcing the planting of the poppy in every way possible but now it is encouraging the sale and smoking of opium. Twenty cents an ounce tax on crude opium gives the owner the protection of the army in selling. For dives a license of $5.00 per lamp per month gives protection and a neat little sum to the army. Lotteries and gambling are all the rage. To run the former only $5.00 a month tax is charged; to run a gambling table $2.00 per day is paid. The people are in despair and ready to give up the attempt even to be decent.

AT MERCY OF SOLDIERS

"Meanwhile extortion on a scale never attempted by bandits or the Southern army is daily forced upon this poor people. The heavy poppy tax is only one among a score of taxes being ruthlessly assessed and collected by the army at the point of the bayonet. Civil Government is practically at an end. Everything is done by soldiers in uniform. Men from 50 to 80 years of age are being dragged from their homes and held up for all they can be forced to pay by torture. The officers have thrown all decency to the winds. Several of those who would be respectable have plainly said they would resign if they could. Most of them join in the merry game of catching these old men and farmers who have a little laid aside and torturing them until they hand it over.

"They constantly threaten to turn the soldiers loose to loot unless their demands are met. It

MASSACRES BY TURK TROOPS STIR ALLIES INTO ACTION

Moslem Cabinet's Fall Aggravates Gravity Of Situation

Strong Action Needed To End Crisis—Armenian To Be Armed

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, March 6.—The London correspondent of the Petit Parisien telegraphs the following report of an important meeting of the Supreme Council on Friday afternoon when the situation in Turkey was discussed. Mr. Lloyd George was present at the sitting.

Highly alarming reports from the British High Commissioner at Constantinople, Admiral Sir John de Robeck, were read. These reports depict the situation in Asia Minor as full of menace. According to the latest British estimates the number of Armenians recently massacred at Marash and Antioch amounts to 15,000.

The Supreme Council, says the correspondent, decided that strong action was necessary and the question of sending powerful reinforcements to Turkey was discussed. In the meantime severe representations will be made to the Porte.

At the morning sitting of the Council yesterday the financial clauses of the Turkish treaty were discussed. M. Venizelos was heard on Greece's share of the Ottoman debt.

ALLIES MAY OFFICER TURK GENDARMERIE

The Conference has received Holland's reply to the Allies' second note on the subject of the ex-Kaiser.

The Supreme Council yesterday morning informed M. Vaida Voivod, the Rumanian Premier, who is staying in London, that the Powers had decided to recognise the union of Bessarabia with Rumania. The Council at the same time recommends Rumania to hasten the evacuation of Southern Hungary which is still occupied by Rumanian troops. The evacuation has already begun.

London, March 5.—The fall of the Turkish cabinet has aggravated the seriousness of the Turkish crisis.

Meanwhile it may be taken for granted that if official reports from Turkey confirm the accounts of Armenian massacres, Allied forces will be despatched to Turkey immediately. It is further stated that the Armenians will be provided with arms. As regards future safeguards, it is noteworthy that a proposal is now being considered for officering the future Turkish gendarmerie with Allied officers.

Influential Europeans from Constantinople have informed the British Government that Turkey will not accept the drafted treaty and that the temper of the Nationalists is stiffening owing to the decision to leave the Turks at Constantinople.

NATIONALIST LEADER TO FORM NEW CABINET

Constantinople, March 4.—The Turkish Cabinet has resigned. The Sultan has called on Marshal Izzet to form a new government.

Marshal Izzet is a strong supporter of Enver Pasha and the Nationalist party and his appointment is therefore significant at the present juncture, but he must not be confused with the notorious Izzet Pasha, who was the Sultan Abdul Hamid's evil genius and as Minister of Police, the chief instigator of the appalling massacres of Armenians under Abdul Hamid's rule.

Paris, March 7.—The Japanese delegate yesterday notified the conference of ambassadors of the Japanese government's recognition of the de facto government of Armenia.

The conference examined a note from Herr von Goepert, the German delegate to the peace conference, on the clauses of the Treaty of Versailles, providing for the destruction of German aeroplane hangars. The question was submitted to the aerial clauses commission.

Subsequently the conference considered the reply to be made to a German note, concerning the diplomatic protection of nationals of the plebiscite districts. It was decided to maintain the previous decision of the conference, by which this protection will be entrusted to the state, whose representative is president of the

TOKIO WANTS BUFFER STATE AGAINST RUSS BOLSHEVIKI

Soviet Rulers Ready To Concede Territory To Establish One

SEMENOFF LOSES

Officers Deserting Him And Men Prepare To Join Enemy

DENIKIN TRAPPED

Collapse Of Sebastopol Is Looked For By British Officials

(Reuter's Service)

Shanghai, March 7.—According to advices which reached Shanghai today from well informed quarters in Harbin, a highly interesting development has taken place in the situation in Central Siberia.

The Bolsheviks wanting a respite in order to complete the organisation of their internal economy, have apparently decided, for the time being at least, not to push their advance further eastward, contenting themselves with holding the territory which they have occupied in the Baikal region. Accordingly they have opened negotiations with the "Political Center" (Irkutsk) with a view to the formation of a buffer state between the Soviet Empire and the Far East.

The Bolsheviks propose:

1.—That the boundary of the Soviet Empire shall be the river Selenga.

2.—That the armed forces of the buffer state shall be under Soviet leadership.

3.—That the government of the buffer state shall contain two or three Soviet representatives.

REVOLUTION AGAINST SEMENOFF EXPECTED

The "Political Center" on the other hand proposes:

1.—That the boundary shall be the Yenisisei.

2.—That the army of the proposed state shall be under the direction of the Center.

Hitherto the two parties have not been able to come to terms.

It appears that the Atamanship of Semenoff is nearing its close. Semenoff is now overshadowed by General Voitchekovsky, commander of the remnants of General Kappel's army. Semenoff with his immediate entourage is still in Chita, but the majority of his officers have gone eastward, mostly to Harbin, and some to Mongolia. Semenoff has already sent his family and all his movable property to Mongolia.

The so-called Semenoff army today only exists on paper. His men are wandering about the country, requisitioning the food supplies and only waiting for the advent of the Bolsheviki to go over to them.

An anti-Semenoff revolution is expected to break out in Chita shortly. The workmen declare that they will not allow Semenoff to leave the town.

WOMEN AND CHILDREN MASSACRED NEAR ROSTOV

Washington, March 6.—Owing to the rapid eastward spread of Bolshevism, Japan is understood to desire the creation of a "buffer" state between herself and Soviet-controlled Russia. It is believed here that the establishment of such a state will be one of the first matters to be considered in the discussion of future relations between Japan and Russia.

Refugees report that Sudennies (?) cavalry occupied a village 69 miles from Rostov on February 28 and massacred all the Cossack sick and wounded besides refugees, including women and children.

London, March 4.—A War Office report on the situation in South Russia at March 3 records that the Bolsheviks had been driven back in three areas.

The latest information indicates that the reported occupation of Tikhoretzkaya by the Bolsheviks is incorrect and that General Denikin still holds the important lateral railway Rostov-Georgievsk-Petrovsk. He is withdrawing his line unmolestedly south of Rostov.

London, March 2.—A Moscow telegram states that it is officially reported that on February 28 the Red army captured Tikhoretzkaya, and that General Denikin has been caught "in a mouse-trap" on the Kuban peninsular.

BRITISH SUBJECTS TOLD TO QUIT NOVO-ROSSISK

London, March 2.—The Bolshevists claim a great victory in the Northern Caucasus near Belizagiana. It is reported that General Denikin's First Kusan Corps has been annihilated and that the Reds are advancing rapidly.

London, March 2.—The Constantinople correspondent of the Associated Press states that the evacuation of Novo-Rossisk is hourly expected. British subjects have been ordered to leave. Inter-Allied officials here are preparing to handle the refugees, 20,000 of whom are expected. It is proposed to divert 5,000 of them to Egypt and 3,000 to Cyprus.

The situation is aggravated by the prevalence of typhus at Novo-Rossisk.

It is the opinion in official circles here that Sebastopol will also soon collapse.

London, March 1.—In the House of Commons today, replying to Viscountess Astor, Mr. Lloyd George said that he regretted that the Government was at present not in a position to charter a vessel to repatriate Austrian and Hungarian prisoners of war in Siberia. The Premier promised to bring the proposal before the Council of the League of Nations.

Osaka March 8.—The vernacular press reports from Moji the arrival on board the Mansei Maru of a party of Russian refugees from Vladivostok, including a person said to be a chamberlain of the late Tsar. Pursued by the Bolsheviks he finally reached Vladivostok, which however soon became uncomfortable for Imperialists. The ex-chamberlain now proposes to proceed to Italy. He was not present, the papers state when the Tsar was executed.

At The Theaters

As a feature of the program for tomorrow, Thursday and Friday nights at the Victoria Theater in addition to the screen offering, Mr. Otto Lederer, a noted figure in the world of filmdom, will appear in person and will present a vaudeville act.

Mr. Lederer has been in the Orient for several months as a member of the Universal company that has been engaged in making the serial picture, "The Petals of Lao-tze."

In addition to the special offering the Victoria bill includes another 'Bab' picture, one of the series in which is given a dramatisation of Mary Robert Rhinehart's "Sub-Deb" stories which convulsed all America when they were published in the Saturday Evening Post. "Bab's Matinee Idol," the production in question will be on the bill tomorrow and Thursday nights.

Another exceptional screen offering is found on the bill which opens at the Apollo theater Thursday. This is the production in which Evelyn Nesbit Thaw and her son, Russell Thaw, appear. The picture with the title "Her Mistake" is a drama full of appeal and human interest in six parts.

Marie Walcamp On Screen Here Soon

Miss Marie Walcamp, star of the Universal Film company now in Shanghai, is to be seen on the screen at the Isis Theater shortly in the opening episodes of her great serial "The Red Glove."

The theater, which was recently taken over by Mr. H. D. Tseng, son-in-law of the proprietor of the Great World, is being remodelled, the new management announcing that the Isis is to be as well equipped as any in Shanghai.

Unusual interest will attach to production of "The Red Glove" here because many of the people of Shanghai have watched Miss Walcamp as she was photographed here in episodes of "The Petals of Lactze," an Oriental spectacle she has just completed under the direction of Mr. Charles McRae.

In "The Red Glove" Miss Walcamp was injured several times when attempting dare-devil stunts to add to the interest of the story. At one time, actually trapped in a burning building, she was badly crushed by an orang-outang which was being used in connection with the picture. At another time her wrist was broken by a bad fall.

One scene demanded a leap from a second story window and Miss Walcamp would not consent to anyone "doubling" for her in the stunt. She was in a hospital for a week afterwards.

Miss Walcamp and Miss Phillis Gordon, one of the Eltinge stars, have been holding a "reunion" in Shanghai. Miss Gordon was Miss Walcamp's predecessor under Mr. McRae's direction with the Universal people. She was the original star with the old 101 Bison.

In the "Red Glove" Pat O'Malley plays the leads, Leon Kent and Tom Langham the heavies and the remainder of the cast is equally strong. It promises to be a great drawing card for the Isis.

Eltinge Company Tour Is Ending In Wedding Bells

It is with the happy tinkle of wedding bells that the Far Eastern tour of the Julian Eltinge theatrical company is ending, and the closing weeks of the tour down to Manila and back to Hongkong will be a honeymoon trip for two of the members of the organisation whose names have become well known in Shanghai. The petite songstress of the company who came to Shanghai as Miss Cleo Gascogne is now Mrs. David D. Bassett. And it may be added that further chapters of this dramatic romance are to be written in Shanghai. After the conclusion of the tour Mr. and Mrs. Bassett will make their home here.

It was all a deep secret until the musicians at the Carlton began to play the wedding march last night as Mrs. Bassett entered the ball room. Mr. Bassett through the tour has been a member of the Eltinge jazz orchestra, as player of the saxaphone, but while awaiting departure of the steamer to Manila he has been playing with the Carlton orchestra with which he is to appear in future. In the course of this engagement it became apparent that he is a decided musical pinch hitter of high degree, for, besides manipulating the saxaphone he does most extraordinary and melodious things with a banjo and plays the violin as well.

Mr. Bassett confessed that it was all of a year ago that he fell captive to the art of the songstress when she appeared in San Francisco with a former Eltinge company. When she returned a year later with the present company at a time when he was playing with the St. Francis hotel orchestra he was not at all loath to accept a position that was offered in the Eltinge musical organisation for the tour of the Orient.

The ultimate result of all this came yesterday when the couple accompanied by Mrs. Rosenblatt and Mr. Devoe paid a visit to the American Consulate where one wedding ceremony was performed and from there went to the home of Rev. Dr. John R. Hykes, who performed the religious ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Bessett will sail with the Eltinge company on the Empress of Asia Wednesday. After an engagement of two weeks at Manila the company will go to Hongkong for an engagement of two nights which will end the tour. Mr. Bassett will then return to Shanghai to begin his engagement with the Carlton orchestra.

Mrs. Bassett is a St. Louis Missouri girl. She studied voice culture in New York under noted teachers for a period of years and when she entered the dramatic musical field she won a success that made her name known throughout America. She appeared for two seasons at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York, later went into vaudeville and at length joined the first Eltinge company, a happening which has brought her to Shanghai.

Smiles from the Mixed Court

Being a dramatic critic of parts, Tsong Kyan-yih, proud possessor of a large iron dollar, was deeply engrossed in a theatrical performance he was witnessing in North Honan Road when Wong Fok-sung happened along.

Wong is an industrious bird, his chief activity being the removal of pocket burdens of his fellow countrymen. He's been in prison ten times for being careless about how he did his business.

Seeing Tsong enthusiastically engaged in reviewing the show through a peep-hole, Wong thought the buck might be so weighty as to interfere with the critic's pleasure. And so he possessed himself of the dollar.

But he bungled.

Tsong missed the dollar and howled for the police.

It happened that an officer was within earshot.

Three years and expulsion, suggested British Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Li, when they learned that at the time of his arrest Wong was clutching the shekel tightly in his right hand.

In The U.S. Court For China

Zoe Foh Sung, Plaintiff, vs.
Frank Fernandez, Defendant.

Cause No. 846
JUDGMENT
Filed March 8, 1920.

SYLLABUS

1. Contracts. Courts will not make contracts for parties nor inquire into the wisdom or advisability of their undertakings.

2. Guaranty. The language of a guaranty is construed most strongly against the guarantor.

3. Acceptance of a guaranty and notice thereof are effected where both creditor and guarantor sign the written contract which embodies it.

4. A continuing guaranty does not require notice to the guarantor of each item of credit extended; a general notice, within a reasonable time after the whole transaction is closed, suffices.

Messrs. Jernigan, Fessenden and Rose, by Mr. Rose, for plaintiff.

Paul Myron Linebarger, for defendant.

Lobingier, J.:

This is an action on a written agreement by which defendant sublet to plaintiff all of the Continental Hotel, Shanghai, of which defendant was then the proprietor, except the bar and certain bed rooms occupied by the latter. The agreement contains the following clause which is the only one here in dispute.

"The Lessor shall have the right to collect and receive on behalf of the Lessee any and all moneys due to the Lessee for any refreshment, boarding, or/and lodging which the Lessor shall have supplied on behalf of the Lessee to any person or/and persons; he shall hand over to the Lessee any and all moneys in cash as soon as he collects and receives them in cash. He is not permitted to retain in his possession any and all money due and belonging to the Lessee nor to make any personal use of them. If any chits shall not be paid for in cash, the Lessor must get them paid as soon as possible but not later than the first and fifteenth days of every calendar month when the Lessor must make payment of chits and hand over to the Lessor any and all moneys due to the Lessee. If the Lessor shall not have collected any money due under chits signed and not paid for, on the first and fifteenth days of every calendar month, he must make payment in full of such chits, and hand over any money due according to the chits to the Lessee. The Lessor must take care to supply refreshment, boarding, or/and lodging to any person or/and persons in order to ensure due payment of the charges for the same. If default shall be made in the payment of any chits on every first and fifteenth days of every month, the Lessor must take the full responsibility to make payment in full of any such chits to the Lessee."

Chits to the amount of Mex. $3,004.90 were admittedly received by defendant from plaintiff who claims payment therefor by virtue of the clause above quoted.

We cannot agree with defendant's counsel that it merely gives his client the "right" to collect these chits. It does that, of course, but it also imposes the obligation to pay. "The lessor must make payment;" that phrase is repeated, with slight variations, no less than thrice in this one clause.

Counsel pronounces this "a most preposterous guaranty" and we are disposed to agree that it was not a prudent one. But that alone affords no ground for relief. Courts cannot make contracts for parties nor inquire into the wisdom or validity of their undertakings. For us it is enough that this one was entered into voluntarily and of that there can be no doubt. Defendant expressly admits that he read the contract before signing and he was in a better position to understand it than was plaintiff to whom the language was foreign. And while defendant states its terms differently than they read the contract speaks for itself. We do not see that it is ambiguous and if it were, the rule in this jurisdiction is that "the words of the guaranty (which counsel declares this clause is) are to be taken as strongly against the guarantor as the sense will admit."

A chit for $1.00 bears the indorsement "nothing doing" and counsel asks if it is reasonable to suppose that defendant ever guaranteed such a chit. If that were the sole indorsement we would think not because it is only "chits signed and not paid for" of which, according to the contract "he must make payment" and a chit merely so indorsed is not "signed," as the parties evidently used the term. And although the chit in question is also indorsed "Mr. Johnson" plaintiff makes no claim for its payment.

If among those claimed there is any not properly signed, defendant had an opportunity to show it but never attempted to do so. Plaintiff testifies (p. 14) "In every case these chits were presented to him (defendant) for his approval." Defendant, in reply to the question, "Did he bring these chits to you at all?" said "Not all" and later stated (p. 24) "What he took at night he gave to my shroff in the morning. Sometimes I saw them and sometimes not." The shroff testified that he was given the chits every morning. This not only afforded opportunity to verify all signatures; it also constituted the notice of credit given required by the rule which counsel invokes. Besides a guaranty like this is a continuing one and the creditor is not required to give notice of each item of credit extended. A general notice within a reasonable time after the whole transaction is closed suffices, and defendant's testimony (p. 16) that he "made demand from time to time" is undisputed.

Counsel also invokes the rule that an offer of guaranty must be accepted by the creditor before it binds the guarantor. We are dealing here, however, not with a mere offer of guaranty but with a completed contract in which the guaranty is but one feature, and by signing which plaintiff as creditor not only accepted the guaranty but gave defendant notice thereof.

The compiaint states an additional claim for $302.57 of which all but $50, which is claimed to have been paid, is undisputed. Plaintiff admits the payment but states that it was on another account while defendant's wife, who actually made the payment, evidently means to say (p. 29) that she intended it to apply on this account and since it was a voluntary payment she had that right, and the item must be deducted from plaintiff's recovery.

It is therefore considered and adjudged that plaintiff have and recover from defendant the sum of Mexican $3,207.47 together with costs.

By the Court,
Charles S. Lobingier.
Judge.

Shanghai Educator Brother Of Writer

Kinsman Of Mr. E. S. Dreher Of Shanghai American School Authority On Germany

Mr. William C. Dreher, writer of an article on the political situation in Germany which appeared in THE CHINA PRESS of Sunday, whose published reports of affairs in Germany have been receiving much attention in the United States, is a brother of Mr. E. S. Dreher, principal of the Shanghai American School.

The writer acquired his acquaintance with the trend of national movements in Germany through long residence there and he was one of the first American newspaper men to enter Berlin after the signing of the Armistice. After a period of study at German educational centers Mr. Dreher served as American Consul at the city of Guben for four years, having received the appointment from President Grover Cleveland. He declined reappointment offered by President McKinley and in 1897 he went to Berlin to take the post of Associated Press correspondent. On the outbreak of the war he returned to the United States in the party of former Ambassador Gerard. Following his return he was commissioned representative of the New York Tribune and returned to Europe. He has remained in Berlin since the period following the armistice.

A coincidence in connection with his arrival in Berlin was that his brother, Mr. Dreher, principal of the Shanghai School, was employed in Y.M.C.A. educational work with the Army of Occupation in Germany while he was in Berlin and was able to forward to him badly needed food supplies from the zone held by the American forces.

Mr. Dreher, principal of the Shanghai School, came to China last fall.

Film Exchange May Be Established In Shanghai This Year

Thomas H. Gubbins Points Out Need Of Orient To Universal Heads

That a film exchange for the Universal Film Company will be established in Shanghai this summer is the belief of Thomas H. Gubbins, assistant director of the company now in the Settlement on its way to California after filming "The Petals of Lao-tze," which will probably be produced under the name of "The Dragon's Net."

Mr. Gubbins has called to the attention of Mr. Carl Laemmle and other officials of the corporation the necessity for a film exchange in China and believes it quite likely that he will be sent back here about next July to open an office. Headquarters will undoubtedly be established in Shanghai if the plan is adopted.

The members of the company are to depart from Shanghai next Saturday afternoon, having practically completed the new Walcamp film, to be shown in 18 episodes.

Every day your complexion pays toll to dust and wind

The rough, cold winds chap and roughen the skin; dry heated air draws and parches it. The constant strain under which we live—the ceaseless activity of crowded days, the constant effort, the lack of rest—all these things take daily toll of the complexion.

You can protect your complexion from the wear and tear of both summer and winter—can prevent that tired, drawn look from appearing in your face, by giving your skin the care it needs.

Apply a little Pond's Vanishing Cream when you motor or travel; rub it in lightly. This will protect the sensitive pores from grit and grime, will keep your skin free from that parched feeling that generally follows exposure to dust and dirt.

It has a wonderfully beautifying effect, and as a base for powder it is so effective that one powdering is sufficient for the whole evening.

This fragrant, dewy cream contains a skin-softening ingredient of great value, one that skin specialists recognize as most efficient in keeping the skin supple, for giving it the transparent freshness everyone admires.

OPIUM SMUGGLER, WITH POLICE IN PURSUIT, ESCAPES

Russian Throws Can Of Drug Into River To Evade Local Officials

Pursuit of an opium smuggler on the Whangpoo river by harbor police resulted in the escape of a Russian who was bringing in the drug and the seizure of four pounds of the contraband article. The man eluded the harbor police and constables in the Settlement by throwing overboard from a sampan a can containing the drug.

According to the story told to the Mixed Court yesterday a constable on duty at the Chingwangtao jetty saw the Russian approaching in a sampan with the harbor police in close pursuit. The harbor officers shouted to the constable to seize the man when he landed.

Hearing the warning, the Russian threw a can of opium overboard and then came ashore. He was searched, both by the constable and the harbor police but as there was nothing of an incriminating nature on his person he was not held.

In the meantime the harbor police had some of their aides attempt to locate the can that had been thrown into the water. They were not successful.

Returning to the jetty after nightfall the constable discovered a crowd of Chinese seeking the opium and learned that one had finally found it. When the constable, No. 464, saw the can he stepped into the crowd but the man bearing the can dropped it on the jetty and made his escape.

British Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Li ordered that the drug be turned over to the customs authorities.

Robert Dollar Is Speaker On God's Help In Business

Claims Unique Record Of Having Read Bible For 31 Years Everyday

"God's Help in Business" is the theme of an address delivered by Captain Robert Dollar, head of the Robert Dollar Steamship Company Sunday before the American Song Service. Reading a part of the Bible every morning for 31 years is the record of Captain Dollar.

Captain Dollar chose for his text the first chapter of "Joshua," 8th and 9th verses: "This book of the Law shall not depart out of thy mouth, but thou shalt meditate thereon day and night that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein; for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous and then thou shalt have good success. Have not I commanded thee? Be strong and of good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed; for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest."

The speaker had selected this specially for the young folks. It is a command to study the Bible night and day and not just now and then. He said that men and women should always find time to read it no matter how busy they are.

He had traveled on the average 5,000 miles a year for the last 31 years and yet had found time to read the Bible every day. "It stands to reason," said the speaker in conclusion, "that a book must be very interesting indeed if it could make a busy man like myself read it every day for 31 years."

could of course be made even worse by burning and looting."

A letter from a correspondent at Shaowu shows that the South is as bad:

FORCE POPPY PLANTING

"I have just returned from a long tour through Kienning and Taining counties and find that representatives of the Southern army have been all through that region enforcing the planting of poppy seeds. They sell the seeds, under penalty of severe punishment, at $8.00 an ounce and then say that when the blossoms appear they will also appear and collect $8.00 for each ounce of seeds which they sold. The farmer may then dispose of the opium as best he can.

"Furthermore they are opening gambling booths from which they collect a tax. And in many other ways they are stripping the people of what little they now possess.

"We hope that some pressure may be brought on the proper authorities to put a stop to this ugly business. At present there is very little open brigandage, but the drainage caused by the parasitic soldiers is as bad as brigands."

Massacres By Turk Troops Stir Allies Into Action

commission of administration of the district concerned.

STRONG ACTION NEEDED TO RELIEVE SITUATION

London, March 4.—In the House of Commons this afternoon replying to Sir Donald Maclean, with regard to the Armenian massacres Mr. Lloyd George stated that the matter was being discussed by the Allies and between the Government and the British representative at Constantinople. A statement on the situation was at present inadvisable.

Mr. Asquith urged that full information should be given as far as possible in order to relieve the general anxiety.

Mr. Lloyd George replied that the anxiety was fully shared by the Government and all the representatives of the Allies. Since they had received the very serious news of the massacres, the Allied Conference had very anxiously considered the matter and had come to a decision which had been communicated to the Allied Representatives at Constantinople.

It was inadvisable, the Prime Minister added, at present to publish the character of the decision which depended on the advice received, but the Government was fully alive to the gravity of the position and the need of taking very strong action to protect the minorities as far as possible.

'TWO AND THREE'

'Putting The Next One Over' With 'Bugs' Baer

Rummies are asking Congress to set aside July 1 as another Memorial Day.

'Tis a beautiful thought with a sentiment as sweet as the honey that the drone bee snipes but refuses to work for. An idea as sweet as the sugar that once roamed in great herds over the plains of America. Which suggests the dope that we ought to have a Memorial Day for sugar, too.

In future years the mint julep leaf will supersede rosemary as the vegetable of remembrance. On July 1 a soup-eyed crowd will gather reverently on the curbs of Fifth Avenue, while the relics of the swift evaporating tribe of barkeeps shimmy sadly to the tune of "The Old Oaken Bucket," played by an augmented orchestra of thermos bottles and cash registers. The "Oaken Bucket" is the barkeeps' dead march. Leading the tear-jerking procession will be a professional pall-bearer carrying a bar towel at half mast.

Can you jamp a regiment of bouncers flatwheeling along on July 1, 1964? The spring of youth is gone from their once buoyant rubber heels. The sparkle of vitality has flown from their once brilliant celluloid collars. The bright red that indicated a robust nose is faded and gone, leaving only a few strings of sickly pink, which is a false blush caused by busted capillaries. The hand of Time is like a mule's hind leg.

Can that quivering relic be the once powerful bouncer who staked us to the hobo's exit fifty years ago in 1918? Do you remember the lad that kissed his young wife goodby without taking his cigar out of his teeth? It's only a married guy who can do that. Do you remember the letter which he wrote and which she waited for in vain? Burleson was postmaster at that time.

He was a stalwart bird when he marched proudly down to Andy's "Little Six" on the corner and waited for the hokier to come in and spear the free lunch. He could throw a poor sapp half-way home without knowing the fish's address. He thought the swinging doors were goal posts, and many a guy went over 'em without stopping to wait for his brown derby.

The verdigris is blooming on the brass rail. Some thoughtful soul has planted ivy on the bar and its soft five-pointed leaves twine sadly around the venerable ruins as if it would hide Time's never healing scars. Or is it three-pointed ivy? What difference does it make? There is no chance of being poisoned.

Oh, ginger pop, where is thy victory? Oh, Bevo, where is thy sting? The procession halts at the former high licensed mausoleum, while a grizzled brewer places a wreath of cloves on the silent doorknob, whose voice used to thrill countless thousands. A squad of former wine agents march up carrying corkscrews at reversed arms. A tribute to those who have gone before? Nope. A mark of reverence to those who used to stagger behind.

And who limps sadly up the Avenue now in full dress uniforms of sackcloth and ashes? It's a regiment of bromo seltzer manufacturers, whose business was swept away in the ginger ale panic of 1919. They fire a round of aspirin tablets over the grave of J. Barleycorn. The sun sinks gloomily in the handy West, like a red currant flopping into a glass of near beer. The day is done where once it used to start.

An old man tries to sprain his ankle so that he will have an excuse for staggering. Hopeless. Legs are stronger since 1918. Then he sadly wheels into a drug store and tries to drown his sorrows in cherry phosphate, which is like pouring water on a fish. He drinks 16 without feeling that tidal wave of sympathy which used to make him kiss the barkeep good-night, whiskers and all. The world is a dumb place. Think of all the friends we used to make after the fourth drink.

Arrest Of Manager Of 'Flower World' Is Basis Of Suit Here

Head Of Shanghai 'Coney Island' Demands Damages For His Incarceration

Before British Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Li yesterday afternoon the trial of the case Jui Zing-tien vs. Yu Tse-tsai was commenced with a full battery of legal talent in support of the plaintiff who is the proprietor of one of the Coney Islands of Shanghai known as the "Flower World."

Mr. Paul M. Linebarger of Linebarger and Holcomb, J. Em. Lemiere and Mr. H. Musso represented the proprietor of the "Flower World" with Mr. Earl B. Rose of Jernigan, Fessenden and Rose as representative for the defendant.

Mr. Linebarger appeared for plaintiff's Counsel, Mr. Frank M. Hadley, who is now abroad on his vacation. The plaintiff is asking damages for his arrest and imprisonment for one day and a night last July, the arrest being the incident of a suit instituted by the present defendant.

"I was taking in $170 a day before my arrest" declared the plaintiff under an examination conducted by Mr. Linebarger. "After I got out of jail my Flower World receipts dropped off $100 a day for three weeks and the attendance of from 3,000 to 5,000 who patronised the Flower World daily immediately dropped off."

The plaintiff further lamented loss of electric fixtures and furniture which he said pilferers seized while he was in jail. He claimed a total loss of Taels 4,000. Six coppers was the price of admission and the merry little coppers did not come clinking in after his arrest as they did before. Plaintiff also complained that some of his actresses had been embroiled in love affairs during his incarceration and out of the small army of 170 employes a third of them would not come back to work.

Mr. Rose on cross examination brought out the fact that the plaintiff had built up his large amusement establishment on the shoe string capital of a rent allowance from the defendant, the rental being merely $600 a month, the whole large business being eventually operated on the comparative small capital of $12,000.

AWARNING TO MOTHER

Never give a baby a sleeping draught, a soothing mixture, or an opiate of any kind whatever, except by the order of a competent doctor who has seen the child. All these things are poison, and they are moreover utterly needless, while the sleep they give is unhealthy, unnatural and injurious.

In Baby's Own Tablets there is not one atom of "sleeping stuff." Yet by their beneficial, healthy action they give refreshing sleep, sleep from which the child awakens bright and well.

Mrs. George Foote, of St. Thomas, Ontario, Canada, writes:—"My baby was troubled with diarrhoea, was very restless and cross, and got but very little sleep. I hardly knew what to do with her. I got a bottle of Baby's Owo Tablets and after using them she could sleep well and her bowels became regular. I am much pleased with the Tablets and think them a fine medicine."

Baby's Own Tablets, the Canadian children's remedy, are obtainable from chemists, or post free, 60 cents the vial, from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

SIR JOHN JORDAN IS HONORED ON HONGKONG VISIT

Retiring British Minister Given Honorary Degree Of Doctor Of Laws By University

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, March 8.—Speaking at the special congregation of the Hongkong University yesterday evening when the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred on him, Sir John Jordan dwelt on the need for men of modern education in China. Whatever profession students took up, he said, their country would be ready to receive them. China needed doctors in every part of the country. She needed mining engineers and she needed sanitary improvement. Chinese students, he was pleased to know, were anxious to learn everything that could be taught them, for they were beginning to realise that in education lay all the prospects of the future. Hongkong University had rendered yeoman service to China but it was to be regretted that greater efforts had not been made in the adjoining country. He was informed that in Kwangtung the Government spent only $100,000 a year in education and it was the same in other provinces. In the yearly provisions education always came last. China must rid herself of militarism and try to make education universal.

GOVERNMENT GUEST

Hongkong, March 7.—Sir John Jordan has arrived here. He is staying as a guest at Government House. Sir John is having luncheon with Sir Robert Hotung, after which he will attend a special congregation of Hongkong University when the degree of doctor of laws honoris causa will be conferred upon him.

Sir John Jordan was the guest of honor at luncheon at Sir Robert Hotung's residence. A distinguished company had been invited to meet him including Sir Reginald Stubbs, Governor of Hongkong; Vice-Admiral Sir Alexander Duff, Commander-in-Chief, China Station; Major General Francis, Ventris, G. O. C. Forces in China; Mr. J. W. Jamieson, Consul General at Canton; Mr. Claud Severn, Colonial Secretary; Sir Paul Chater, and the leading representatives of the Chinese community.

Williams Funeral To Be Held Today

The funeral of Mr. George B. Williams, who died Sunday following an attack of cerebro spinal meningitis with which he was stricken last Wednesday, will take place at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon under Masonic auspices at the Bubbling Well Cemetery. Members of Sinim Lodge will attend in a body.

Though he had visited China two years ago for a short time, Mr. Williams was a newcomer, having arrived from New York with Mrs. Williams in January. He headed a party representing the New York silk manufacturing firm of J. H. and C. K. Eagle and Company and had planned to remain here until next winter in connection with extensions planned by his company in Shanghai.

British Officers With Labor Corps To Be Repatriated

(Reuter's Service)

London, March 2.—In the House of Commons today, replying to Colonel C. R. Burn, Unionist, Sir Archibald Williamson for the War Office said that authority had been given for the ten British officers now at Shanghai in charge of repatriated Chinese Labor Corps men to return to England. He anticipated that they would embark "when their duties were completed."

Arrangements had been made whereby the Command Paymasters at Hongkong would issue them advances of pay and detention allowance while waiting at Shanghai.

Had His Revenge

Where there's a will there's a way.

The poor young student, who lived at the top of the fifth flight, had had a scuffle with the local postman. The poor student got the worst of it, and a black eye, but he pluckily shook his fist and cried, "Revenge!" and then settled down to think. That was on Monday morning.

On Tuesday the poor student was busy. He was writing postcards — dozens — scores—hundreds —and, wonderful to relate, all addressed to himself! On the other side were written the three words: "Beg my pardon."

There were four posts every day, and 120 steps in the five flights. Each post brought a single postcard to the student with invariable regularity, and the unlucky postman was thus forced to go up and down 960 steps every day in order to deliver four separate postcards.

He held out valiantly for three weeks, but succumbed at last through nothing more or less than sheer fatigue.

From which it will be seen that attic bed-sitting rooms have their advantages.

CASTORIA
for Infants and Children.
Save the Babies.
INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent, or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent, or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!
We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy and retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse. It causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.
The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria
Physicians Recommend Castoria.
"I have used your Castoria in cases of colic in children and have found it the best medicine of its kind on the market."
J. E. SIMPSON, M. D., Chicago, Ill.
"A medicine so valuable and beneficial for children as your Castoria is deserves the highest praise. I find it in use everywhere."
J. S. ALEXANDER, M. D., Omaha, Neb.
"Have used your Castoria on various occasions in suitable cases and have found it a palatable and efficient laxative, especially in the various diseases of childhood."
CHAS. EDWARD GARDINER, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.
"Castoria is good for children and I frequently prescribe it, and always obtain the desired result."
F. GERALD BLATTNER, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.
"I have prescribed Castoria to families for several years. It is all right. Mothers like it, for children will take it without any trouble."
C. A. WILSON, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.
"Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children."

ITALY LOOKING TO AMERICA, SAYS MARCONI

Early Settlement Of The Adriatic Question Depends On The Good Will Of U. S.

THAT IS HIS BELIEF

Reconstruction Work In Europe Only Possible Through Aid From Here

By GUGLIEMO MARCONI

(Inventor of the Wireless Telegraph and a Member of Italian Senate)

London, January 17.—The seeming lightness and superficiality with which foreign public opinion has generally accepted the pessimistic and unworthy rumors—artificially spread—regarding the possibility of a revolution in Italy have caused among our people a deep sense of regret. The real truth is that the conditions of national life in Italy are not worse than those of other Allied countries.

We are suffering a crisis which is the direct and unavoidable consequence of the immense sacrifices made during four years by the Italian nation, which has made an effort comparatively too great for its own resources. Although our industries and a large majority of our working classes are doing their best to accelerate the economic reconstruction of the country, the scarcity of raw materials—coal and iron particularly—the hostility of the international exchange to Italian money, and the political work of internal dissolution attempted by a small minority of Extremist Socialists, have till now made very difficult that national effort. Nevertheless, unemployment is scarce, industry is trying its best to recuperate, the economic confidence of the nation in the power of the State is increasing, and our exports are growing again at a rate nearly equal to that of pre-war times.

EARLY RECOVERY PREDICTED

My impression, in a few words, is that our country in four or five years will have regained its industrial and economic prosperity, if the indispensable support of the Allies does not fail to help our strong desire for rapid and substantial reconstruction.

The Italian people are profoundly anxious to know what are to be its national frontiers. The state of uncertainty cannot help the Italian Government in suppressing the revolutionary propaganda conducted by the Extremists of the Socialist party, which is, therefore, indirectly favored in its destructive activities by shortcomings of the Allied diplomacy.

Every one of us is anxious to settle definitely the Adriatic question in a fair and liberal way which shall protect the vital Italian interest and feelings, and shall be, at the same time, a guarantee to the Jugo-Slavs of an economic and political independance that we have never dreamt either of smothering or opposing. But the failure of the Allied diplomacy to hasten that necessary settlement, and certain immoderate sympathies shown to the cause of our political adversaries, have had the result of creating an impression on Italian public opinion that its efforts and sacrifices for the common victory have been misunderstood and not fully appreciated by the Allies.

It must not be forgotten that Italy lost more than half a million dead and had more than a million of wounded and disabled in her war against the Austrian Empire, in which the majority of the Jugo-Slavs were, till the last days of the war, the most strenuous and faithful supporters in the battlefield. Yet there is a current opinion that the Italian war has been a "little war." Even admitting that it was so, who is so blind as not to see that the abstention of Italy from the European war would have compelled the Allies to sacrifice for the final success a number of human lives at least equal to that represented by the tragic figures of our losses?

I personally believe the early settlement of the Adriatic question depends on the goodwill of America, and the friendly influence that Great Britain and France will be disposed to use in support of our cause with President Wilson. The abstention of America in the titanic work of reconstruction needed by Europe may have such effects as seriously to imperil the fruits of the Allied victory. Italy is watching with immense anxiety the political crisis in the United States Senate, without losing hope that the great American democracy will recognise the responsibilities accepted by her in the uplifting of humanity. On the other hand, England and France cannot neglect the hypothesis of the danger of plunging Italy tomorrow into a desperate state of discouragement and disillusion by opposing her national claims; because England and France, in this case, would remain isolated against the revolutionary movement now growing everywhere in Europe with impressive violence.

"And what about d'Annunzio?"

I believe that he will be quite disposed to renounce his adventurous spirit—morally supported, at any rate, by the large majority of the Italian people—as soon as a satisfactory solution of the question of Fiume is found. The tales current in Allied countries about his imperialistic ambitions have no foundation of reality. After all, he is a sincere patriot, and his conduct during the war deserves the greatest admiration.

Venizelos Came Home To A Little Surprise

Athens, Greece, Jan. 17.—When Premier Venizelos returned from the Peace Conference he found a pleasant surprise awaiting him. As he walked into his bedchamber he found on the bed a pair of finely embroidered house slippers made by a poor Greek girl. Her original idea was to present them to the Greek Premier in recognition of his services to his people, but friends of her's who knew of the heavy expense they entailed to the poor girl, offered to raffle them for her, the ticket holders undertaking to buy tickets in the name of the Premier. The girl thereby got a good profit from the slippers, while her wish to reward Venizelos was gratified.

The World Outlook

THE week has started off with a plentiful supply of news such as it is. None of it is of a particularly good or hopeful character. So far as the United States is concerned the League of Nations and the Treaty of Peace are dead as the dodo. This is announced from Washington where it is said that if the League and Treaty are ratified with the Lodge reservations, the President will pigeon hole them.

Another Reuter cable says there is every indication that the Treaty will become the issue of the next Presidential campaign. This, if correct, means that no effective action will be possible for a year and that in the interim the United States, so far as world peace is concerned, will be marking time; and that domestically there will be seven or eight months of turmoil and dissension.

The Black-Sea-Caucasus campaign of the Bolsheviki seems to be progressing rapidly, meeting with success after success, and, of course, creating new and serious perils for the Allies. Denikin either has met with a complete disaster or has barely escaped it by executing a rapid retreat. Sebastopol, it is thought, will soon collapse. The evacuation of Novo-Rossisk is hourly expected and the harrassed officials at Constantinople, which is already congested, are preparing to take care of 20,000 more refugees.

President Wilson has sent a new note to the Allies dealing with the Adriatic muddle. Messrs. Lloyd George and Millerand were inclined to blame him for the dangerous tempest in that particular little teapot. He declines all responsibility under this head, which leaves the matter just where it was.

Cabinet crises are reported from Madrid and Lisbon. Japan would like to see a buffer state established in Siberia in order to stem the Red Tide, but we fail to see how a buffer state would stop it. Nothing else has stopped it and it is even now in Vladivostok. Incidentally, Japan has stepped out and recognised the Armenian Government, wherever and whatever that may be. We are unable to guess what good this will do. It certainly will not save the 16,000 Armenians, victims of the latest massacre. The Allies, we note, have now decided to arm some of the few survivors of the Armenian race. They might to better advantage disarm all the Turks.

Turning to China we find that the long-smoldering Militarist-Constitutionalist antagonisms are growing fiercer and that active warfare between these contending forces is obviously nearer. And our correspondents report that Bolshevist thoughts are spreading amongst the Chinese, both soldier and civilian.

Worst of all, to our mind, is the apparent breakdown of statesmanship in the face of this world chaos. All our leaders of recent years are either out of office or are preparing to be ousted. What new leaders are to take their places? Where are they?

One of our valued readers wrote in to us the other day and protested against our policy on the grounds that as he put it, we were unnecessarily optimistic. He pointed out that being unjustifiably optimistic is just as foolish and criminal and disreputable as being pessimistic sometimes is. It's a sad story, mates.

Daisy Ashford Weds

'Sir James M. Barrie Did Not Give The Bride Away'

Daisy Ashford, the now famous author of "The Young Visitors" (Doran), was married on January 8 to James Devlin, with whom she was associated in national work during the war. Those who have been fortunate enough to enjoy the bridal scene in "The Young Visitors" are all agog to know the details of the wedding, whether the young authoress lived up to her early conception of a really fine wedding party such as the one she gave to Ethel and Barnard. Ethel had chosen for a wedding dress "a rich satin with a humped pattern of gold on the pure white and it had a long train edged with arum lilies. Her veil was of pure lace with a crown of orange blossum. Her bouquet she ordered to be of white dog daisies, St. Joseph lilies and orange blossoms tied up with pale blue satin ribbon." We wonder whether Miss Ashford "cantered up in a very fine carriage drawn by two prancing steeds who foamed a good deal." But we will know all this in good time, for Daisy Ashford is now a celebrity and her name frequently appears in fashionable London papers.

Christopher Morley informs the readers of "The Chaffing Dish": "Her husband will have to work pretty hard to be known as anything else than 'the man who married Daisy Ashford.' It is particularly hard on him, because there will be many critics who will insist that he is J. M. Barrie in disguise."

Sam McCoy comes up in "The Conning Tower" with remarks to the effect that "Sir James M. Barrie did not give the bride away."

Bourbon Necklace Restored To Family

Paris, Jan. 24.—The proud Bourbon-Orleans family has regained possession of a priceless pearl necklace which had descended from King Charles V., but which for some time has been in possession of Viscountess de Termens. Some time ago Prince Alfonso of Orleans, who recently renounced his Spanish citizenship, brought criminal action against the Viscountess, alleging she had illegally appropriated the jewels, but in her reply the defendant claimed the necklace had been given to her by the Prince.

Prince Alfonso and the Viscountess on Thursday called on Judge Cluzel, before whom the action was brought, and the former acknowledged he had given the defendant the pearls. The latter then agreed to accept 700,000 francs and return them to the Bourbon-Orleans family. When this arrangement was made the court acquitted the Viscountess of charges preferred against her by Prince Alfonso.

Einstein's Own Story

(Literary Digest)

Dr. Einstein has the honor not only of restoring metaphysics to a position in natural science that it has not held since the days of the early schoolmen, but of making the man on the street or in the trolley-car talk about it. Philosophers have long recognised that certain things, seemingly absolute, are only relative; but the ordinary citizen cared not a whit until certain other things, the result of a mathematical discussions begun fifteen years ago, were suddenly found, by observers of a solar eclipse, to have real correspondence with nature. When a philosopher says "nothing is absolute, only relations exist," it might be thought that he had gone the limit in this direction; but Einstein goes further—he tells us that some relations are themselves relative. Even Sir Isaac Newton acknowledged the non-existence of any such knowable thing as absolute position in space; only difference of position, distance, the relation of two positions, is knowable. With Einstein even this is indefinite, being dependent on the velocity of the observer. Einstein himself refers his theory, or his discovery, whichever it may be termed, to his effort to reconcile two apparently incompatible principles, both of which he believes to be true. Whether the elaborate system thus evolved satisfies the mind better than a denial of one or the other principle at the start, it is difficult to say. Dr. Einstein writes of his work in The Times (London), and our quotations are from a reprint of the article in Science (New York, January 2). He says:

"There are several kinds of theory in physics. Most of them are constructive. These attempt to build a picture of complex phenomena out of some relatively simple proposition. The kinetic theory of gases, for instance, attempts to refer to molecular movement the mechanical, thermal, and diffusional properties of gases. When we say that we understand a group of natural phenomena, we mean that we have found a constructive theory which embraces them.

"But in addition to this most weighty group of theories, there is another group, consisting of what I call theories of principle. These employ the analytic, not the synthetic, method. Their starting-point and foundation are not hypothetical constituents, but empirically observed general properties of phenomena, principles from which mathematical formulas are deduced of such a kind that they apply to every case which presents itself. Thermodynamics, for instance, starting from the fact that perpetual motion never occurs in ordinary experience, attempts to deduce from this, by analytic processes, a theory which will apply in every case. The merit of constructive theories is their comprehensiveness, adaptability, and clarity; that of the theories of principle their logical perfection and the security of their foundation.

"The theory of relativity is a theory of principle. To understand it, the principles on which it rests must be grasped. But before stating these it is necessary to point out that the theory of relativity is like a house with two separate stories, the special relativity theory and the general theory of relativity.

"Since the time of the ancient Greeks it has been well known that in describing the motion of a body we must refer to another body. The motion of a railway-train is described with reference to the ground, of a planet with reference to the total assemblage of visible fixed stars. In physics the bodies to which motions are specially referred are termed systems of co-ordinates. The laws of mechanics of Galileo and Newton can be formulated only by using a system of co-ordinates.

"The state of motion of a system of co-ordinates can not be chosen arbitrarily if the laws of mechanics are to hold good (it must be free from twisting and from acceleration). . . . The special relativity theory is the application of the following proposition to any natural process: 'Every law of nature which holds good with respect to a co-ordinate system must also hold good for any other system, provided that [the two] are in uniform movement of translation.'

"The second principle on which the special relativity theory rests is that of the constancy of the velocity of light in a vacuum. Light in a vacuum has a definite and constant velocity, independent of the velocity of its source. Physicists owe their confidence in this proposition to the Maxwell-Lorentz theory of electrodynamics. The two principles which I have mentioned have received strong experimental confirmation, but do not seem to be logically compatible.

What Dr. Einstein apparently means is that the first principle quoted asserts the dependence of natural law on the motion of the observer, while the second asserts the absolute independence of one law—that fixing the velocity of light. In his theory, he achieves their logical reconciliation, he asserts, by making a change in the doctrine of the physical laws of space and time. He goes on:

"It became evident that a statement of the coincidence of two events could have a meaning only in connection with a system of co-ordinates, that the mass of bodies and the rate of movement of clocks must depend on their state of motion with regard to the co-ordinates. . . .

"Physics had to be modified. The most notable change was a new law of motion for (very rapidly) moving mass-points, and this soon came to be verified in the case of electrically laden particles. The most important result of the special relativity system concerned the inert mass of a material system. It became evident that the inertia of such a system must depend on its energy-content so that we were driven to the conception that inert mass was nothing else than latent energy. The doctrine of the conservation of mass lost its independence and became merged in the doctrine of conservation of energy.

"The special relativity theory, which was simply a systematic extension of the electrodynamics of Maxwell and Lorentz, had consequences which reached beyond itself. . . . Consider the case of a system of co-ordinates which is conceived as being in stable rotation relative to a system of inertia in the Newtonian sense. The forces which, relatively to this system, are centrifugal must, in the Newtonian sense, be attributed to inertia. But these centrifugal forces are, like gravitation, proportional to the mass of the bodies. Is is not, then, possible to regard the system of co-ordinates as at rest and the centrifugal forces gravitational? The interpretation seemed obvious, but classical mechanics forbade it.

"This slight sketch indicates how a generalised theory of relativity must include the laws of gravitation, and actual pursuit of the conception has justified the hope. But the way was harder than was expected, because it contradicted Euclidian geometry. In other words, the laws according to which material bodies are arranged in space do not exactly agree with the laws of space prescribed by the Euclidian geometry of solids. This is what is meant by the phrase 'a warp in space.' The fundamental concepts 'straight,' 'plane,' etc., accordingly lose their exact meaning in physics.

"In the generalised theory of relativity, the doctrine of space and time, kinematics, is no longer one of the absolute foundations of general physics. The geometrical states of bodies and the rates of clocks depend in the first place on their gravitational fields, which again are produced by the material systems concerned.

"Thus the new theory of gravitation diverges widely from that of Newton with respect to its basal principle. But in practical application the two agree so closely that it has been difficult to find cases in which the actual differences could be subjected to observation. As yet only the following have been suggested.

"1. The distortion of the oval orbits of planets round the sun (confirmed in the case of the planet Mercury).

"2. The deviation of light-rays in a gravitational field (confirmed by the English Solar Eclipse expedition).

"3. The shifting of spectral lines toward the red end of the spectrum in the case of light coming to us from stars of appreciable mass (not yet confirmed). . . .

"No one must think that Newton's great creation can be overthrown in any real sense by this or by any other theory. His clear and wide ideas will for ever retain their significance as the foundation on which our modern conceptions of physics have been built.

An interesting statement by Dr. Einstein in his conclusion is an admission that his system stands or falls by any single detail. Modification is impossible. The whole is either true or untrue.

The Great Change

When they shipped me home from Brest
With some shrapnel in my chest
And a bayonet wound a-biting at my leg
I was feted, I was dined,
I was motor-car'd and wined
And they said, "Here's looking at you, good old egg."

But it ain't the same today,
As I pass I hear them say,
"There goes that dirty traitor, damn his soul."
You see I'm striking now
And they're kicking up a row
'Cause I'm holding up their profits on their coal.

It sure is very strange
When you figure out the change
Since the time when I came back from over sea.
I'd a feeling all along
There was something mighty wrong
But, by God I never dreamt that it was me.

They Hope To Salvage 1,000 Torpedoed Ships

That Is The Number Of British Vessels Which Lie At Depths Regarded As Workable—Little Or No Hope For Ninety Such Craft, Including The Lusitania

London, January 8.—Official plans have been announced for the greatest feats of salvage ever undertaken, whereby, with the support of the British Admiralty, attempts will be made to rescue from the sea 1,000 craft sunk by submarine or other destructive agencies in the war. Operations will be confined for the time to the sea area surrounding the British Islands. The work will be extended to the salvage of cargo as well as craft, and thus the money value of what may be saved can hardly be calculated, but it promises to be vast.

Modern methods are said to be equal to the task of raising any craft resting on bottom in not more than twenty fathoms (120 feet) of water. The Admiralty figures that at least 1,000 vessels ranging in tonnage from 200 to 10,000 tons lie in waters of workable depth. Cargo can be recovered in still deeper water. Until within a few years divers did useful work at a depth of 182 feet, and that depth was long considered a maximum for their effective operations. Americans set a new record in Hawaiian waters after the war began by lifting a submarine from a bed more than 200 feet deep. If English divers can work at that depth their field of activities will be correspondingly enlarged.

LOCATIONS CHARTED

The British Admiralty has prepared a chart showing with close approximation the position of every sunken vessel between Dungeness, a headland at the southern extremity of Kent projecting into the English Channel, and the mouth of the Tyne, at the North Sea. It is said that as soon as the season for diving arrives it will proceed on such a scale that visitors to all the coast resort will be able to get a glimpse of it and it will be one of the attractions of the season.

Small black dots on the chart indicate the positions of the sunken craft. The dots lie in strings and clusters. There are patches of them off Deal, and along the Suffolk coast, especially near Aldeburgh, the dots are grouped so closely that they look almost like a single blotch. It was in this stretch of water that the British navy destroyed or captured submarines, and the assailants often went down with their victims.

There is a close-linked chain of dots off the mouth of the Thames. Between Flamborough Head and Whitby, which is on the Yorkshire coast, the Germans for a time reaped a rich harvest, tailing off in a line running northeast into the North Sea.

An indication of the rewards for salvage is instanced in the case of the steamship Tours, which was lifted from off the Gower rocks, on the Glamorganshire coast, after the ship had been exposed to wind and weather for six months. The salvage men towed her into Swansea and got $400,000 for the feat.

NO PRESENT HOPE FOR LUSITANIA

Experts in salvage have never permitted themselves to count on bringing the Lusitania again to the surface, or even reaching any of her cargo, for she went down in 49 fathoms (294 feet) of water off the Old Head of Kinsale, on the southern coast of Ireland, and there has been no sign of her since she sank there early in May, 1915. The ship was worth $10,000,000,000, and she carried more than $800,000 worth of cargo, and those values have served to fire the imagination of the adventurous and the optimistic. The fact that she is not represented by a dot in the Admiralty list has not extinguished hope that improvements in modern methods may be stimulated by the prospect of the wealth that would reward such a recovery, or that perhaps the sea might carry her shoreward into workable depths.

It would be a miracle if the sea could lift the ship from her resting place, for the ocean bed there shelves steeply. At ten miles from shore, where the messages from the Lusitania indicated she was struck, sinking in twenty minutes, the depth is 294 feet. In order to move the ship landward a distance of five and one-half miles would need to be traversed up an inclined shelf of rock, to a depth of 240 feet, which would still be too great for divers. The 180-foot line is distant more than eight and one-half miles from where the ship went down, the incline still continuing steep, and it would be necessary to move nine miles from the sinking point, or one mile from shore, before a depth of twenty fathoms (120 feet) could be reached. Divers could go down there and rescue treasure, but they could hardly expect to move such a tremendous bulk as the ship to the surface from deeper water, and the sea is not performing uphill feats with such bulk. The sea bed is sixty feet deep half a mile from shore indicating the precipitous nature of that part of the coast. More lives might have been saved and there would have been a chance of salvage if the master of the ship could have contrived to head her for shore and keep her afloat long enough to travel about nine miles, but even so she could have been beached only on the rocks.

A 'MARINE CEMETERY'

Many other craft also found a grave off Old Kinsale. It is estimated that more than 90 craft of various kinds were sunk there, converting it into a marine cemetery. All of them, like the Lusitania, seem to be beyond resurrection until or unless invention can find a way to enable divers to descend to much greater depths than has heretofore been possible. So the Admiralty is letting Old Kinsale alone as beyond practicable range for effectual operations in salvage.

Loss of the Lusitania deprived the Cunard Line of a wonderful ship in respect to capacity and speed, but it involved the line in no loss of money for construction outlay or cargo value. The English Government assumed most of the risk and paid it, and the remaining value was covered by insurance in various English companies. The potential loss fell, of course, on the company, for such a ship would have been a most serviceable and profitable carrier for the remainder of the war.

Another serious loss to be reckoned as final, along with the Lusitania, was that of the Justicia, of the White Star Line, 32,000 tons burden, which maintained a fight of nearly 24 hours with German submarines before she went down in deep water off the north coast of Ireland. She had been built for the Holland-America Line, and was taken off the ways at Belfast at the outbreak of the war and assigned under charter to the White Star fleet. On one of her early trips she carried 30,000 bushels of grain to Europe, and after this country entered the war she made frequent trips as a transport, carrying 5,000 men at a time. When attacked, in July, 1918, she was on a westward course, carrying no passengers, but with a crew of more than 600 men. At the first blow her Captain decided he could proceed to an Irish port under the ship's own steam. He emerged without serious damage from a running fire with the original submarine. Then he encountered another submarine. The ship stood the shock of nine torpedoes before going down out of sight of land.

Although it may not be possible to salvage such famous craft as the Lusitania and the Justicia the tasks in workable water are sufficient to keep salvage men busy for a long time. Great Britain lost in the war by official figures computed to last March—four months after the armistice—9,043,744 gross tonnage. The ship values at $200 a ton were estimated at $1,808,748,800; the cargo values, at $100 a ton, at $904,374,400; the property, money and lives, insured at $10 a ton, at $90,437,440; the earning power, at $7.65 a ton per month, $1,340,331,217, making a total for ships sunk of $4,143,891,857. Repairs for damages cost $452,187,200 and earnings lost during repairs were $69,184,641, making the loss in damages $521,371,841, or a grand total of $4,665,263,698. Probably at least half the loss for ships sunk occurred within workable distance of the coast. If the proportion were one-quarter the rewards for salvage would yield fortunes to successful salvage men.

The established companies are perfecting their equipment, and foreign companies will be as ready and eager to enter the field.

Other totals of losses for ships sunk and for repairs were distributed as follows: United States, $469,276,245; other Allies and neutrals, $2,639,044,515—making the world's grand total $7,773,584,458. Salvage work naturally will be undertaken wherever practicable.

DEEP SALVAGE RECORDS

Authentic records of salvage show that from a depth of 182 feet a Spanish diver, Angel Erostarbe, recovered $45,000 in silver bars from the wreck of the steamer Skyro, sunk off Cape Finisterre; Alexander Lambert saved $350,000 from the Spanish mail steamer Alphonso XII., sunk in 162 feet of water off Las Palmas, Grand Canary, and W. Ridyard recovered $250,000 in silver from the Hamilton Mitchell, sunk off Leuconna Reef, China, in 150 feet.

Heine Angel And Imp.
His Red-Haired Inspiration.
A Fight For Freedom.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

This is about Henrich Heine, greatest literary genius of the Jewish race, in his special line, greatest poet of any race.

If deep patriotism turns you from a German name, know that the Hohenzollerns hated Heine more bitterly than you hated any Hohenzollerns.

Human beings are a dull, level pain. In the background, a few mountain peaks, Heine is one of the peaks. Not to know him and his work gives you every right to call yourself uneducated.

Heine was born with the last century. His father was a happy-go-lucky man, fond of music, not practical. His father's brother, Solomon, the banker, was one of the richest men in Germany.

His mother was the daughter of an able Jewish physician, Dr. Simon von Geldern. From his father, who played the flute assiduously, Heine got the romance in his nature. From his highly intelligent mother he inherited his brain power, intense love of freedom and wit. The mother was Jewish, but not exactly Orthodox. She described herself as "a philosophical Deist of Voltaire's school." That was the start of the young thinker and poet told by his mother in childhood. "Reason is the sole arbiter in the puzzle of religious and other beliefs."

Heine was recognised as one of the great poets of Germany when a mere boy. At thirty he was called "second only to Goethe," not exactly pleasing to Goethe, who said of Heine after the young man had called at Weimar, "Heine has all gifts except love."

Let your childrrn learn by heart many of Heine's songs; for instance, the eight beautiful lines that begin:

"Ein, Fichtenbaum steht einsam."

"A pine-tree standeth lonely
On a far norland height,
It slumbereth, while around it
The snow falls thick and white.
And of a palm it dreameth,
That, in a southern land,
Lonely and silent standeth
Amid the scorching sand."

Many of Heine's songs have been set to music by German musicians worthy of the task. All children should be taught to recite and sing, "On Wings of Song," "When I Look in Thine Eyes," "Lay Thy Cheek Against My Cheek," "The Lorelei," and others.

Heine was baptised in the Lutheran Christian Church much against his will and baptised "Harry," an added horror, although it reads "Heinrich" on his tomb. He consented to baptism because Prussian law would not allow a Jew to practice law without it. This baptism of their greatest poet has distressed many Jews, proud of their ancient faith, but it need not.

Heine was never a first-class Christian. He said: "I consider it a degradation and a stain upon my honor to submit to baptism, to qualify myself for state employment in Prussia." He got even with the Hohenzollerns on every occasion, and did it thoroughly.

Pressure by his rich uncle, Caloman, who didn't want to support a nephew, sent Heine into the law via baptism.

That practical uncle, who lives in history, thanks to the nephew, used to say: "If Heinrich had amounted to anything he wouldn't have been driven to make books for a living."

Heine never took the trouble to learn what Christianity had done for democracy, or to read St. James, the original radical, who would be promptly deported by a careful government if he should walk out of the New Testament now and begin his preaching from a soap box. Heine's idea of Christianity was thus expressed: "Christianity, by inculcating hound-like humility and angelic patience, has proved the surest support of despotism."

When he was lying on his "mattress prison," slowly dying in Paris, religion came to him, but in typical Heine fashion. He thus describes it:

"A religious reaction has set in upon me for some time. God knows whether the morphine or the poultices have anything to do with it. I believe again in a personal God; to this we come when we are sick, sick to death and broken down. If the German people accept the King of Prussia in their need, why should not I accept a personal God? When health is used up, money used up also, and sound human senses used up, Christianity begins . . . For the sick man is a very good religion.

He never changed, alas, lived and died a heathen. Four hours before his death an anxious friend asked "Have you made your peace with God?" The poet, who for years had been dying by inches, replied wearily, with his last smile, "Do not trouble yourself, dieu me pardonnere; c'est son metier—God will forgive me, that is his trade."

Those were Heine's last words.

He had his hours of sadness when even he found it hard to laugh at life, with its long, proverty and cruel suffering. "In many moments a doubt quivers through me whether man really is a two-legged god, as Hegel assured me five and twenty years ago. I am no more a Divine biped; I am no more the high-priest of the Germans after Goethe—no more the great heathen No. 2—a Hellene of jovial life and portly person, laughing cheerfully down on dismal Nazarenes; only a poor death-sick Jew."

Hegel, the German philosopher, greatly influenced Heine and other thinkers and writers in the last century. Once Heine and Hegel were looking at the stars through an open window. Heine thus describes it: "I, being a young man of twenty-two, and having just eaten well and drunk my coffee, spoke with enthusiasm of the stars, called them the abodes of the blest. But the master muttered to himself, 'The stars! Ha, ha! The stars are only a brilliant eruption on the firmament!' 'What?' cried I, then there is no blissful spot above, where virtue is rewarded after death?' But he, glaring at me with his pale eyes, remarked, sneeringly, 'So you want a bonus because you have supported your sick mother and refrained from poisoning your brother.'"

Get a good history of Heine. You will see him at the end of life, tuberculosis devoring his spinal cord, paralysis creeping slowly over him, one eye gone, but the indominable will alive, lifting with thumb and forefinger the paralysed eyelid from the good eye, to watch the effect of a witty remark.

You will see Heine at sixteen, embrace his adored red-haired Sefchen, a strange wild creature, daughter of the public executioner. A superstitious nurse had taken him to the girl's mother, "Die Goechin," supposed to be a witch, and the executioner's wife. Later he went regularly to see the beautiful red-haired girl of whom all the neighbors lived in dread. She showed him her grandfather's sword that had been used in a hundred executions, then put away in a grave because, "A sword which has drunk blood five score times acquires a horrible personality, and can only be appeased by the oblivion of the grave."

Sefchen, whose male relations had all been public executioners taught him strange folk songs. One that made him creep, foretelling his own burial.

"Flow, flow, water flow, wash the linen white as snow."
"'Be ready soon,' she sang aloud.
'I wash for thee thy dying shroud!'"
"Blade, blade, broad and bright,
Hew the oaken plank aright."
"Spade, spade, sharp and strong,
Dig the grave, deep and long."

It was creepy, but the young poet liked it, it stirred his imagination. He wrote poetry for the young lady and she, only sixteen, opened a vein in her arm and made neat copies of the poems in her own blood.

She must have been an interesting young person with "her skin changing white. Her great, deep, dark eyes looking as if they had just pronounced a riddle and were waiting quietly for an answer, while the mouth, with its strongly curved bow and oblong teeth, white as ivory, seemed to say: 'You are stupid, and never will be able to guess it.'"

Thus Heine describes her, with: "Her hair perfectly blood-red, tied in long locks under her chin, as though blood were welling forth from her throat in red streams."

No wonder Heine wrote poetry after associating with her. Too bad we don't know more about her. Let's hope that in spite of prejudice against her mother, the sorceress, and her father, the public executioner, she married an able, steady man. Such a combination should have had remarkable children.

The books that most affected and developed Heine's boyish imagination were "Don Quixote," Sterne's "Sentimental Journey" and "Gulliver's Travels." Those three books, the great fairy stories of literature, helped develop one of the most beautiful imaginations that ever lived upon the earth, and one of the greatest warriors in the army of freedom.

That fact ought to interest the so-called "educators" who tell fathers and mothers not to let their children read fairy tales.

You may be sure, however, that red-haired Sefchen did more for Heine's imagination than Cervantes, Sterne or Swift.

As you read the history of this man keep in mind as you always should, the mother who created him. She sold her jewelry, all she had, to keep her son at the university. She had spent her youth reading books in Latin to her father and, according to her son, "had a horror of imagination, despised romantic legends and superstitious folk lore." But she gave her boy a chance to develop what was in him.

Read Heine's Reisebilder. Read Bimini and read "The Weavers."

Read here his "Fragen Question:"

By the sea, the dreary nocturnal sea,
Standeth a Stripling,
His breast full of sorrow, his head full of doubt.
And with gloomy lips he asks of the waters:
"Oh, solve me the Riddle of Life,
That harrowing world-old riddle,
Whereon many heads have pondered and brooded:
Heads in caps hieroglyph—scribbled.
Heads in turbans, and heads in black beavers,
Heads periwigged, and a thousand others,
Poor aching human heads——
Tell me what signifies man!
Whence has he come? And whither goes he?
Who dwells up in the golden stars?"
The waves they murmur their endless babble;
The wind it blows, and the clouds they wander,
The stars they glitter coldly in different——
And a fool waits for an answer."

In these days when ouija board tells that papa is happy and wants to talk to mamma, and Mr. Maeterlinck is lecturing on a queer, flimsy, immortal soul of his own invention, read for a pleasant change Heine's idea of the birth of a great thought:

"Immortality! beautiful thought. Who first imagined thee? Was it some Nuremberg shopkeeper, who, with white nightcap on head and white porcelain pipe in jaw sat some warm Summer's evening before his shop-door, and comfortably mused how pleasant it would be if this would only last for ever—pipe and breath never going out, to vegetate on for all eternity?"

Heine's idea of freedom, English, French and German brands is as follows: from "English Fragments" (page 111). "An Englishman loves freedom as he loves his lawfully wedded wife; he regards her as a possession, and, if he does not treat her with special tenderness, yet, if need be, he knows how to defend her.

"A Frenchman loves Freedom as he does his chosen bride; he will commit a thousand follies for her sake.

"A German loves Freedom as he does his old grandmother. And yet, after all, no one can ever tell how things may turn out. The grumpy Englishman, in an ill temper with his wife is capable of some day putting a rope round her neck.

"The inconstant Frenchman may become unfaithful to his adored mistress and be seen fluttering about the Palais Royal after another.

"But the German will never quite abandon his old grandmother; he will always keep for her a nook by the chimney corner, where she can tell her fairy tales to the listening children."

Now, in Heaven, Heine knows better. The German did abandon his old grandmother to follow the Kaiser. He is paying a high price for the mistake.

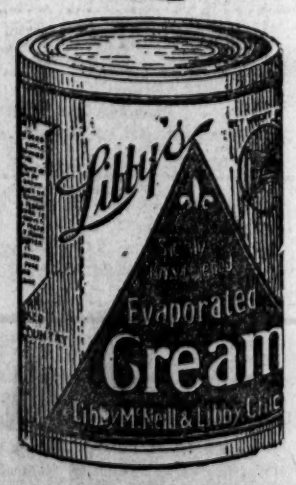
DELICIOUS CANDIES

Libby's CREAM



Never would you think that candy could be made at home so easily as this! It's no trick at all to make dainty bonbons, chocolates, stuffed dates and all kinds of fascinating sweets.

You don't even need to light the stove.

The base for them all is made by sifting two cups of powdered sugar and adding enough Libby's Cream to form a paste that can be handled. Work this with the hands until creamy, and flavor with any preferred flavoring.

To make coconut candy, roll small portions of this cream fondant in shredded coconut and stand on oiled paper to dry. For bonbons, color with vegetable coloring or add chopped nuts, raisins, figs or coconut. Or you can use the fondant to stuff stoned dates or figs.

The secret of the success of all these tempting candies lies in Libby's Cream. For its consistency is just right to combine with the sugar. Ask your grocer today for a can of this creamy milk that comes to you from rich dairying district and see how easily you can be your own candy maker.

AND HER SON

RUSSELL THAW

SUPPORTED BY ALL-STAR CAST, INCLUDING LOIS MERIDITH, FRED STANTON AND EUGENE STORY

IN

"HER MISTAKE"

A Vigorous and Virile Six-part Gripping Drama well stocked with popular appeal. It is direct and culminative in interest.

Never in the history of the world has there been a more sensational case, or never in the history of American courts a more bitterly fought trial than the one in which a few years ago Evelyn Nesbitt, Harry Thaw and Stanford White where the principal characters.

What was it all about? Nobody for the time knew, nor do they to this day know the whole truth. However, the most sensational murder trial ever held in New York resulted. While for years Harry Thaw was dragged back and forth through the courts his wife never deserted him.

It is doubtful if any other woman has ever had to go through the same amount of suffering as did Evelyn Nesbitt Thaw during those years of her life. Her husband had killed a man of prominence and claimed as his defense for doing so that his wife had been insulted and outraged by the man he had killed. The friends of the murdered man claimed at the trial that the woman had no character either before or after she had married Thaw. It was a terrible mix-up and the brunt of it all fell upon the slender shoulders of this little woman not yet out of her teens.

He Would Make London Glitter

Mr. Davies Suggests Floral Balconies And Tinted Shopfronts And House Windows

London, Jan. 17.—There is no diminution in the search for a panacea to make England bright and merry. One of the latest suggestions is by Crossley Davies in the Architects' Journal, showing how London can be brightened. His futuristic scheme is calculated to make the Empire's capital glitter even in a pea soup fog.

He advocates pavements of red brick and white stone, floral balconies on public buildings, orange trees and evergreens between classical columns on the first floor of apartment houses, glazed tiles, mosaics and frescoes to ornament impressive buildings. Carrying his suggestions further, Mr. Davies prescribes delicate tinted shop fronts and house doors and windows with bright awnings, gilt and bronze porticos and railings, gold and green tiles and brightly hued marbles.

An entirely different panacea to re-establish old-time merry England is found in a statement by Dr. Edward Mellanby before the London Medical Society on the effects of alcohol. What he considers would keep a man drunk for the longest time is a mixture of rum and milk, and at the same time would eliminate the worst effects of getting drunk.

Dr. Mellanby says that a man believes when intoxicated that he is a better target shot than when sober, although he really is not. He also said that a man can get sober quicker by walking or running about than by sleeping.
